

Auditory Skills Program

for Students with Hearing Impairment

The NSW Department of Education and Training's Auditory Skills Program for Students with Hearing Impairment has been completely revised and updated to reflect current changes both in curriculum and amplification devices for students in K-6.

This resource is a systematic step by step program designed for teachers to develop speech and language through listening in their students with hearing impairment from kindergarten to upper primary. Aspects of the program can be adapted to maintain listening skills for students in the secondary environment.

The program guides the development of students' language skills, from learning to detect sounds to being able to comprehend and use spoken language at discourse, sentence and word levels, both in quiet conditions and in noise. This process can be observed in the demonstrations on the DVD accompanying the program.

A comprehensive section on phonemes and suprasegmentals provides skills and strategies for both developmental and remedial speech teaching.

Placement tests are designed to pinpoint appropriate starting places in the program for students with different levels of auditory development.

A section on audiological management provides comprehensive information to guide teachers and support personnel in establishing daily routines to maintain listening devices at optimum levels.

The package also includes the following electronic materials:

- a disc containing the complete text
- a DVD demonstrating the program in action
- a CD containing resource materials for activities that involve listening with competing stimuli.
